Sex, Life & Uni

A guide to a fun, safe and consensual sex life for young adults

Heading to Uni and moving away from home is a huge step for anyone, moving into your own place and having the freedom explore your own sexuality and sex with others for the first time. It can be a really fun time in your life, but also super scary, confusing and intimidating... which is why native has teamed up with former Love Island star, turned entrepreneur, podcast host and Vice columnist Megan Barton-Hanson.

She'll be taking questions from the audience and covering everything from safe sex, respect and consent to dating and tips for good sex, so there is less sexual transmitted infections doing the rounds, less bullying caused by ignorance and prejudice and fun, healthy and safe sex life for everyone.

Thrust into the public eye at a young age, they've made their fair share on mistakes and paid for it in a public way. They'll be talking about how they handle the pressure and stress of the limelight, how they combat attacks from social media trolls and AJ speaks out about how he dealt with the personal grief after his partner was seriously injured in a freak accident at home.
